Comments: Mixed bag today with corn higher & beans lower. Corn did start out in the red but fought its way to positive territory before lunch. Beans in the red all session. Still slim picken's on any fresh news. A few areas in Argentina were getting dry but now there's relief in the forecast. One would think that the 2 new bean export sales announced this morning would offset but that was not the case. Even with smaller U.S. bean production and much tighter stocks than what was predicted only a few months ago, traders want no part in going long the market. The new bean export announcement were for 7.42 million to China & 8.31 million to "unknown". The weekly ethanol report posted a strong usage number at 109.67 million. Current ethanol stocks stand at 22.563 million barrels compared to 21.652 mb one year ago. China & Brazil leaders inked numerous trade agreements today. Not necessarily real bad for the U.S. but not good either. Have a nice evening.
